Parisgrafs LOCALLY SPEAKING

"In every work that he began he did it with all his heart—and prospered."

TODAY is the big day, with the gates of the Lamar District Fair swinging wide open. The first half day, up until 1 o'clock, everybody will be admitted to the grounds free of charge. Children will be admitted free all day. This combination should serve to set a new attendance record for our fair.

ROY Miller of Corpus Christi, who is to speak at the fair grounds Thursday noon before the service clubs of the city, is a director in the National Rivers and Harbors Congress and is active vice president of the Intercoastal Canal Association of Texas and Louisiana. His address on inland waterways will be interesting and instructive.

Many cities up and down Red river will send delegations to this meeting. Interest in navigation of Red river is growing rapidly. It is a gigantic task, to be sure, yet others more difficult than this have been accomplished.

The project is big enough and important enough to challenge our people to do their best. The realization of this dream would guarantee growth and development of the entire Red river valley, of which the Paris area is an important part.

ALONG with preparations for the opening of our schools the teachers of fine arts are likewise busily engaged making plans for their fall classes. Paris is exceptionally fortunate in the talent found in the arts—and in the ability of these teachers to instruct our young people.

WITH the completion of the erection of the large clock, presented to the city of Paris by J. J. Culbertson, many favorable expressions have been heard. The people have come to expect a timepiece in some conspicuous location in the city. During the time this clock was not in use there were daily expressions of regret heard.

But few towns in Texas have ever had a citizen as thoughtful of public interests as J. J. Culbertson has been to Paris. His gifts to Paris will live and serve through the years to come. The entire citizenship appreciates these gifts, but even more than this Paris appreciates the fact that Mr. Culbertson is a citizen of our city.

Many people wait until after life has ended for their benefactions to be made. But Mr. Culbertson is doing good while he lives. He sees the results of the gifts he has made to Paris. He is getting some of the joys that come from the high rank Paris holds as a city of civic beauty.

DURING the past thirty days some good work has been done in demolishing old, shabby buildings and the cleaning up of rubbish from vacant lots. May the work continue until all these unsightly places have been put into first class condition.

There are many owners of vacant lots in Paris who keep them in first class condition all the time. The grass is mowed at regular intervals and the weeds are not permitted to stay on the lots. Should these lots be for sale they are more apt to attract buyers than if they were given less care. This is true in every city.

"I WAS in Paris for the first time a few weeks ago and I was so favorably impressed with the city that I came back today with some friends who had never been here," said a visitor from another city, not more than seventy-five miles away. It is strange, but true, that the citizens of neighboring towns know very little about one another.

Search for Texas Slayer

GEORGETOWN, Sept. 8. (P)—Search for the slayer of E. W. Miller, 21, whose body was found on a road seven miles north of here Monday morning, was extended all over the state Monday night. Officials said the only definite motive they could ascribe for the crime was robbery.

LEGION MEETING POSTPONED WEEK

Meeting of Winfield B. Brown post No. 29 of the American Legion has been postponed from Tuesday evening until next week, September 16, on account of the opening of Lamar fair.

At the meeting next week, nominations will be made for officers for the coming year, and reports heard from the delegates attending the annual state convention at Austin last week.

Attack on Surplus Problem is Outlined

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8. (P)—A simultaneous attack by all of the American nations on the problem created by farm production surpluses was recommended by Secretary Hyde Monday at the inaugural ceremonies of the first Inter-American conference on agriculture, forestry and animal industry.

LAMAR FAIR OPENS TODAY; ADMISSION FREE

Harmony Reigns At Dem Meet; Woodward Will Be Chairman

GALVESTON, Sept. 8. (P)—Ross S. Sterling of Houston, Democratic nominee for governor, evidently will be unhindered in his policy of government in the state Democratic convention Tuesday when he will be commissioned formally to carry the party banner next November against the Republican nominee, and all comers.

Cone Johnson of Tyler, old school center and long prominent in Texas democracy, was to nominate Mr. Sterling. Probably no man was closer associated with the nominee than Mr. Johnson, who served with him the past four years on the highway commission. Mrs. Alex Adams of San Antonio, prominent in Texas club activities, was to second the nomination.

A coterie of Sterling partisans was at work Monday night on the party platform.

It was evident there would be no clear cut declaration for a state wide highway bond issue such as was advocated by Mr. Sterling in the first primary. It was likely the platform plank on this subject would declare generally as a matter of policy that the highways be paid for by those who use them. This declaration, friends of the bond issue said, would not compromise the nominee. In that should the state legislature ultimately submit an amendment to the constitution to permit issuance of highway securities and the people adopt it it would be necessary for the bonds to be retired from revenue of the four cent gasoline tax.

However, Senator Love of Dallas, one of the candidates for governor eliminated in the first primary, indicated he might press for an out and out declaration for the bond issue plan. The Sterling forces seeking to have their candidate go forth as the representative of a reunited and reunited democracy, were hopeful of not antagonizing anyone on the proposition. They felt the time had not come to present a solid front and they were willing to have their candidate stand on the general plan of pay as you go without emphasizing the bond issue.

The platform, in addition to touching on the several outstanding issues, (Continued on page five)

G. O. P. HOPES IN TEXAS ARE AIRED

Capitalization of Demo Announces Urged at San Angelo Meet

CAN ANGELO, Sept. 8. (P)—Capitalization of animosities within the democratic party to elect a public official for Texas in November was urged on Texas republicans at their state meeting here Monday by R. B. Creager of Brownsville, national committee man for Texas.

Creager offered the state executive committee an estimate by which he said republicans could hope for 430,000 votes in the November election; 150,000 from the republican party; 150,000 from the supporters of James E. Ferguson; and 100,000 from those who voted for Ross S. Sterling as the lesser of two evils. His speech before the executive committee, in which he declared Dr. George C. Butte of Austin, republican gubernatorial nominee, had a bright chance to be elected, brought cheers from the committee and delegates.

Government Estimate Puts Cotton Yield at 14,300,000 Bales

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8. (P)—Estimating the indicated cotton production for this year at 14,300,000 bales, the agriculture department said today the loss from boll weevil activities probably would be less than any year since 1925.

Without crediting the drought with the decrease in estimated production the department said weevil activity had been checked in the last month by relatively hot and dry weather.

Press reports from New York and New Orleans showed cotton prices to have slumped from $2 to $2.50 per bale following publication of the government crop report.

U. S. Gunboat and Reds Have Short Encounter

HANKOW, Sept. 8. (P)—A sharp encounter between the American gunboat Tutuila and a band of roving communists occurred on the Yangtze river eighty miles from Yochow, Hunan province, late Monday. Dispatches said the American ship suffered no casualties.

RELIEF WORKERS BATTLE DISEASE IN STORM AREA

Streets Ordered Thoroughly Cleaned to Forestall Imminent Epidemic

IMPLEMENTS TO BE RUSHED TO DOCTORS

Depend on Airplane Bring Supplies With Rivers Running Swift

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic, Sept. 8. (P)—The appalling task of saving from death by disease more than 1,000 injured victims of last week's hurricane Monday confronted the relief administrators of this city where 4,000 are dead and virtually all shelter has been destroyed.

To facilitate this end, President Trujillo Monday was invested by the legislature with all the powers of the Dominican government. His first act was to order the streets and other danger spots thoroughly cleaned immediately to forestall an imminent epidemic due to lack of sanitation.

Convicts, lay citizens and uniformed firemen joined in the cleaning up conditions which, if permitted to continue another day must add heavily to the death toll of the disaster.

Desperate efforts continued to bring to Santo Domingo by water cargoes of supplies awaiting landing, but held outside by the rising flood of water in the Ozama river. The Ozama, raised seaward at 15 miles an hour Monday and there were no boats available capable of making a speed greater than that so they might force their way up the tide.

The whole situation hinged on the ability of airplanes, of which about a dozen were available, to land the necessary food, fresh water and medical supplies.

An aftermath of the hurricane was made evident in the report of one army surgeon who had in a few hours performed 50 amputations in the devastated area.

Airmen have obtained a well-defined picture of the scene of desolation, which covers a path 20 to 40 miles wide and about 50 miles in extent toward the mountains. The high, steep range deflected the gale upward so that areas further along on what had been its path escaped destruction.

Monday's survey showed that Santiago, Vega and Boca valleys were not harmed. There is plenty of food in these valleys if it can be transported.

Only the coolness of officers the Dominican army and of the United States mine sweeper Grebe saved Santo Domingo from a food riot during the day.

Hundreds of men, women and children tried to seize provisions which were brought by launches and other light craft to wharves along the banks of the river Ozama. The Dominican and American officers quickly posted their men in strategic positions so far as to hold back the crowds until speakers could assure them that rations would be distributed as soon as possible.

Government authorities and Red Cross workers took up the difficult task of keeping the hungry people orderly while food was doled out at impromptu canteens set up in churches, government buildings and some of the old Spanish stone houses which withstood the fury of the hurricane.

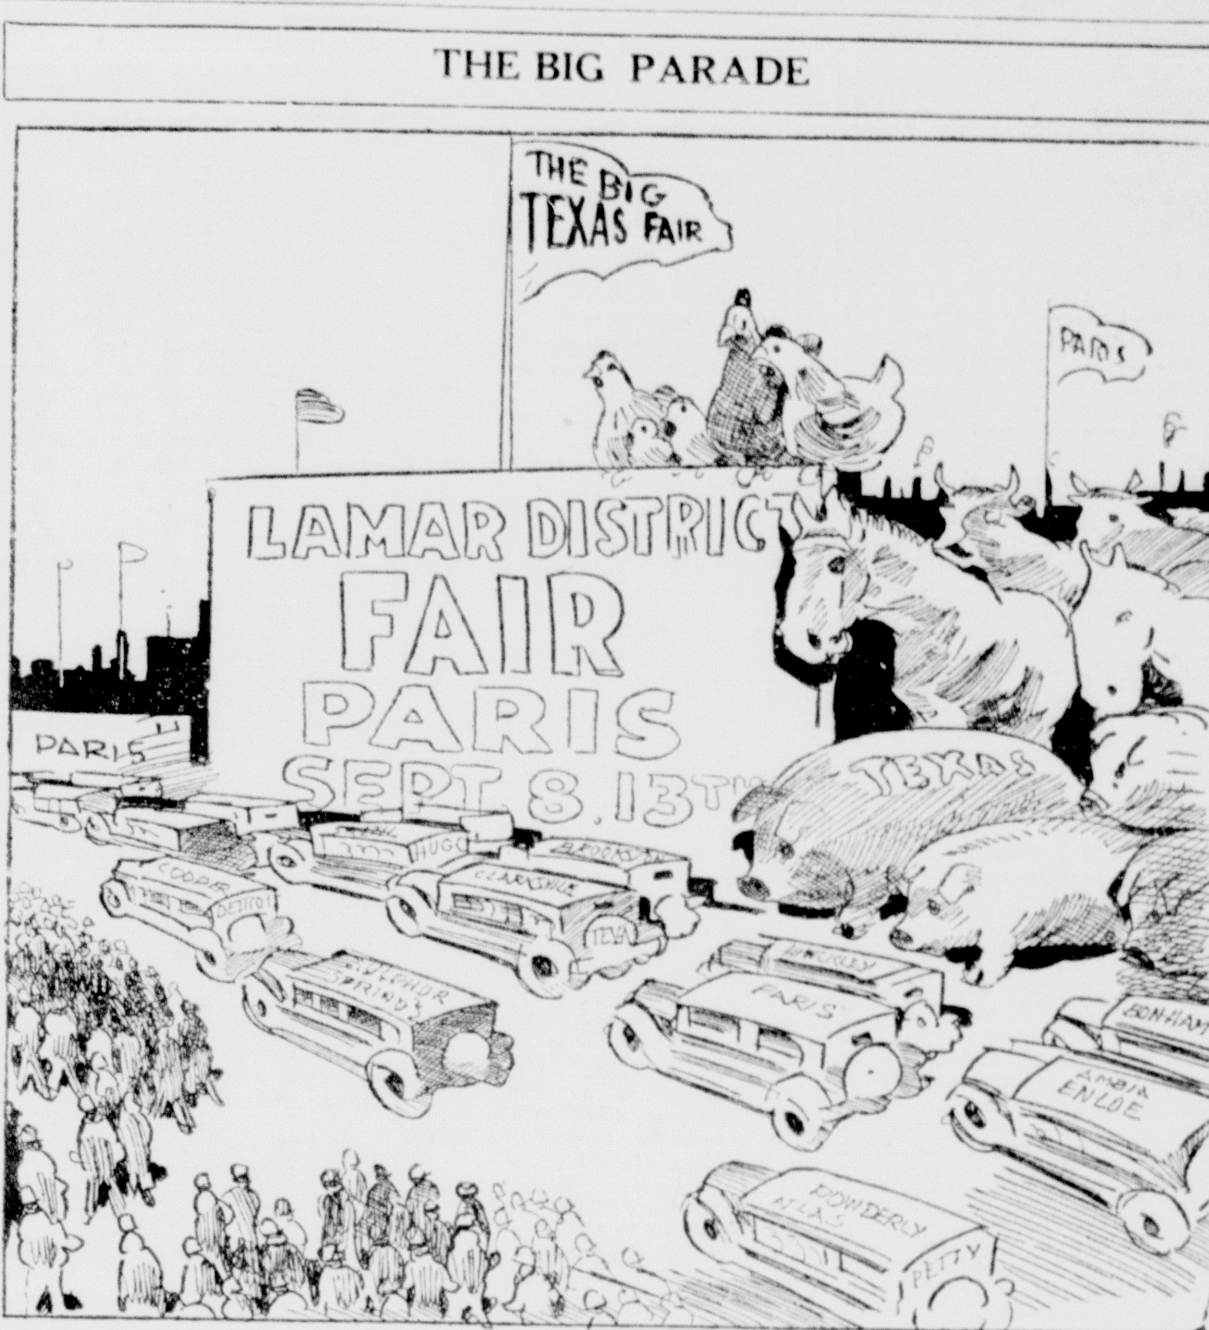

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8. (P)—Prompt response was given by the navy Monday to a call from Santo Domingo for surgical instruments. (Continued on page five)

Counter Revolution Looms In Argentine as Reports Of Firing Boats is Made

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, Sept. 8. (Tuesday) (P)—Despite a rigid censorship placed on outgoing cables and telegraphic dispatches from Buenos Aires last night it was learned here early this morning that sanguinary fighting occurred there during the evening.

Just when the public had appeared to be returning to a normal state of mind after having participated in an enthusiastic manifestation of support for the incoming new government of General

SLAYING CASES AT MT. VERNON

Trials of Widespread Interest Set for Today; Minister Charged

MT. VERNON, Sept. 8. (P)—Two slaying cases of widespread interest, one implicating a 70-year-old Baptist preacher and the other a Cader Barfield, 29, of New Boston, to be tried for the third time in the slaying of Ray Palmer in Texas, were scheduled for trial today.

It had not been determined which of the men would go on trial first, but it was the opinion of court officials Barfield probably would be tried first if no continuance was granted in his case.

Barfield, whose 26-year sentence in Bowie county was reversed, was tried a second time in Case county district court at Linden, but a hung jury resulted and the trial was set here on a change of venue.

The Rev. J. T. Smith, charged with the death of W. C. Lammons, 52, trustee of the Rock Springs school in the southern part of this county, was the second man scheduled to go on trial Tuesday. Lammons died from a broken neck alleged to have been suffered in an encounter with the minister.

Parade in some of which women participated, were formed to march and hail the revolution which ousted the ageing Hipolito Irigoyen. The city was more lively than in one of its famed national fiestas.

Others who took the oath were military officers, provisional officials and the soldiers in the ranks.

BOEDEKER OFFICE ROBBED OF $130

The office of the Boedeker Ice Cream company was entered some time Sunday night or early Monday morning and the sum of $130 in cash secured. The front door of the establishment was opened and the safe door was also opened, according to Bedford Garlin, manager of the plant.

Mr. Harlan stated that the robbery undoubtedly occurred some time between 1:30 Sunday night and 5:30 Monday morning. Two compartments in the safe were looted, the burglar taking only the currency, leaving silver to the amount of about $100. The checks, totaling around $1,000, were also undisturbed.

The police were notified of the robbery Monday morning, but so far have found no clues as to the identity of the burglar.

FARMER'S DAY IS EXPECTED TO BE RECORD BREAKER

Admission at Main Gates Free Until 1 o'clock; Exhibits Ready

With everything in readiness at the grounds, the gates at the Eighteenth Annual Lamar District Fair here will swing wide open this morning at 8 o'clock with no ticket takers on the job at the main entrances.

Special opening day arrangements have been made to admit everyone free of charge until 1 o'clock this afternoon, and children free all day. With this offer in view, prospects are bright that enough Parisians citizens will take advantage of the free admission

Those who live in Paris or east of the city are requested by the Fair association to use the Twenty-seventh street entrance to the Fair grounds when convenient, in order to avoid traffic congestion on North Main street, and along the north highway. The street is in good condition, and an entrance gate was built on the south side of the Fair park last year. This route is nearer for many, and there is usually much less traffic than on the north highway.

to set a record in attendance that will be hard to break for the rest of the season, with a possibility also that all previous attendance records may be broken.

Today has been designated as Farmer's, Children's, Boy and Girl Scouts, and Press Day.

The J. George Loos midway attractions, which before have appeared at Lamar fairs, are on the spot, ready to open early this morning with many new attractions, rides, slideshows and all that goes into fun-making for fair attenders.

The initial performance of the Winter Garden Revue will be given at 3 o'clock this afternoon, followed by another at 8 o'clock tonight.

The closing amusement feature at the grandstand this afternoon will be a game of Indian ball, the two teams being composed of full blood Chetaw Indians. The games will be a daily feature of the fair and are expected to add a touch of novelty and amusement to the program.

The new woman's and girl's building, which was completed only a few days ago is well-filled with exhibits, and is probably attracting as much attention as any other part of the fair.

In the Agricultural building is shown the various farm crop exhibits, the Lamar county school exhibit, the boys' 4-H club exhibits, the Boy and Girl Scout exhibits, and the community exhibits.

The Poultry building contains one of the biggest poultry shows in the history of the fair. Three large flocks from considerable distance are being shown, the A. T. Modlin flock of Shreveport, the Presley Webb flock of Hillsboro, and the Walter Bowers flock of Texas. Among the predominating breeds are the brown Leghorns, white Leghorns, Rhode Island Reds, White Rocks, Barred Rocks, and Black Langshans. Beside the poultry, are shown ducks, geese, turkeys, pigeons, several varieties of bantams and rabbits.

On the floor of the coliseum is found the automobile exhibits, which include late models of various cars sold by Paris automobile concerns. The booths along the wall of the coliseum are being used by the merchants of Paris for displays, and many interesting and instructive exhibits have been arranged.

The first-aid booth, in charge of Miss Olga Buresh, itinerant state health nurse, is also located in the coliseum.

The J. George Loos midway attractions did not arrive in time to open Monday night, as previously planned, and as the exhibits were not all in place, opening of the Fair was deferred until Tuesday morning.

At the north end of the Fair park, the livestock entered for the fair are kept. Nearly every department is filled, and the animals are of better quality than usual.

The stage which will be used in the Wintergarden Revue performances was completed Monday evening, and the first show will be given Tuesday afternoon.

The largest crowd of the season is expected to attend the opening day of the Fair.

THE WEATHER

COTTON ADVANCE DEMAND GREAT

Association is Depending Upon Banks to Make Funds Available

Special to The News.

DALLAS, Sept. 8.—Although representatives of the Texas Cotton Cooperative association have been placed at 200 points in the state, demand for the 50 per cent advance on cotton is so great that the association is depending upon banks to aid in making this advance available to their customers.

All banks are authorized to advance $45 a bale where cotton is known to be middling, 7-8ths inch staple.

Federally licensed classifiers are now in charge of 50 Texas offices, making full 90 per cent advances on seasonal pool cotton immediately upon presentation of samples. Local receivers, who have been appointed at 150 points draw samples and send them to association classifiers, make drafts in the same manner as that outlined above for the banks, and handle all other details of shipping cotton. It is only necessary for the member to place his cotton on the local railroad platform.

It is pointed out that by placing cotton in the association seasonal pool the cotton grower not only draws within $5 a bale of the full market value, but that there is no "comeback" on him should the market decline; that his cotton is merchandised in orderly manner through the season, as demand for cotton makes sales advisable, and he receives the average price which the association obtains for cotton of his grade and staple; and that he participates in benefits of low interest rates obtained under the governmental aid policy, as well as low insurance, warehouse and handling charges made possible by the large volume of cotton passing through one agency.

The Texas association's receipts for the season approached the 100,000-bale mark this week-end, with daily receipts averaging 5,000, and steadily increasing. All cotton is merchandised by the American Cotton Cooperative association, under close supervision of the farm board.

Offices of the association now in operation in this district include: Dallas, J. M. Craugh; Henderson, W. F. Hubbard; Mt. Pleasant, L. L. Lege; Vernon, W. R. Antie; Willis Point, J. L. Stinson; Sherman, H. F. Mauldin; Jacksonville, R. K. Whitty; Paris, George A. Smith; Greenville, Guy Witherspoon; Bonham, Robert Pylon.

Mrs. F. J. Sorrells of Fort Worth spent the week end here with Mr. and Mrs. Wanda Park.

Save Money By Remodeling That Old Building Now!

- Many old homes, stores and offices are as sound today as when first built, but they look out-of-date and, therefore, rent low. It's a real investment to remodel these buildings. Their rental and selling value immediately increase.
- Many old houses have spacious and beautiful interiors. From the outside, however, they seem shabby, old-fashioned, run-down. A few changes will both improve the looks and increase the value of such homes. A modern, light-colored stucco over the old walls, a fireproof roof or a coat of paint may be all that an old building needs.
- Ask your building material dealer, architect or contractor to make some suggestions for remodeling. You will be happily surprised to find out how easily and economically it can be done now.

Universal Atlas Cement is made at Waco—by Texas workers—of Texas materials. Along with other economical quality products, your building material dealer can quickly furnish you either Atlas portland cement (gray) or non-staining Atlas White portland cement. Ask for Atlas cements.

Paris Little Theatre To Have Workshop Program Besides Six Full Plays

The Paris Little Theatre this year, under direction of Mrs. Emma Alexander, will incorporate the workshop program in its winter activities. In addition to the six full length plays to be given during the season.

In the workshop, one-act plays will be selected, rehearsed and directed, costumed and mounted by the members of the Little Theatre association, which anyone interested may join at a very nominal fee. Thus the person who has no special flair for dramatic interpretation is given opportunity to learn by doing, the mechanics of dramatic production, aside from the acting.

One of these one-act plays will be given each month, and members of the association will be admitted by card, these presentations not to be open to the public.

This membership fee does not cover the admission price to the six featured plays, for which tickets will be on sale to the public and association members alike.

The first of these long plays will be "The Servant in the House," by Charles Rann Kennedy, a five act drama, and it is to be presented early in October. Work on the first of the workshop plays has been begun, and its presentation is looked forward to with considerable interest by the association members.

Other long plays under consideration for the remainder of the season include "The Goose Hangs High," "Love in a Mist," "Out of the Night," "Craig's Wife," "The House Next Door," "A Doll's House," "You and I," "Street Scene," and "Bird in Hand."

The program as planned for the season will constitute a very practical course in the fundamentals of dramatics, and Mrs. Alexander, in addition to directing the long plays, will be available at all times to assist the workshop group in their activities.

Prior to presentation of each of the six major plays, Mrs. Alexander will give a lecture on the play in hand, discussing it from all angles of production and interpretation, and members of the association are urged to attend and to take notes for future reference.

In this manner, the members will gain additional information for use in staging the workshop plays, and develop their appreciation of dramatic values.

Mrs. Alexander on her return here after spending the summer in Chicago, studying under Walton Frye at the dramatic school of the Chicago Musical College, reiterated her delight at finding so much promising talent in Paris, and so many people with worthwhile dramatic experience. In "The Torch-bearers," which she directed here in the spring, several local amateurs made their debut, and, with the veteran players, gave a most able and entertaining presentation of the comedy.

With this material at hand, Mrs. Alexander says she feels confident of developing through the Little Theatre a real appreciation of the drama and its mode of presentation, and to provide a high type of entertainment for the theatre-going public of Paris.

Emphasis is placed on the fact that membership is open to all

Lesson-Sermon in Christian Science

The lesson sermon subject in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, Sunday, was "Man."

The golden text was from Psalms 119:65, 73. "Thou hast dealt well with thy servant, O Lord, according unto Thy word. Thy hands have made me and fashioned me."

Included in the service was the following passage from the Bible: "For we know that if our earthly house of this tabernacle were dissolved, we have a building of God, an house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens." (II Corinthians 5:1).

The lesson sermon also included the following citations from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, (p. 302): "The material body and mind are temporal, but the real man is spiritual and eternal. . . . Continuing our definition of man, let us remember that harmonious and immortal man has existed forever, and is always beyond and above the mortal illusion of any life, substance, and intelligence as existent in matter."

COUNCIL HEARS STREET PROJECTS

Requests for Improvement Opening and Drainage Made Last Night

Streets came in for much discussion at Monday night's meeting of the city council, several citizens being present to make requests with regard to improvement, opening and drainage.

Miss Mignon House told the council that her family would give the ground for opening Margaret street from Thirty-second to Thirty-third if the city would provide the necessary drains to take care of the water that now comes on it from Lamar avenue and above.

On motion of Alderman James Gill the engineer was instructed to make an estimate of the cost and present it to the council at a future meeting.

The street committee reported viewing the drainage situation between Houston and Lamar, and that obstructions said to have been built by T. B. Smith in erecting houses damaged the original drain there. The committee thought it would be well to open a street through the property in order to provide adequate drainage, but no action was taken.

It was the consensus of opinion of the council that both projects were so sectional that at least part of the cost should be borne by the property to be benefited, and the engineer was asked to confer with property owners along that line.

Wouldn't Take $1,000 for Good Argotane Did My Wife," Says Wichita Man

"I simply cannot find words to express my appreciation for the benefits my wife derived from Argotane," said J. C. Shart of 1294 Clark, Wichita Falls, a retired ranchman.

"If any one were to offer a thousand dollars in cold cash for the good it did her, I wouldn't take it for Argotane has helped her more than anything she has ever taken. She thinks so much of it, she has persuaded several of her friends to try it."

"For seventeen years my wife has suffered from a severe case of indigestion. She had to be careful of what she ate, and then what little she did force down, would pour on her stomach and she would suffer from gas something awful. She had bilious and dizzy spells and was in a very weak and run case of constipation. She had a bad case of constipation and had to take strong laxatives. She never got a night's rest, but would roll and tumble all night long."

"Argotane was recommended so highly, we decided that she would try it. You should just see her now. She sleeps fine and has gained strength and can now eat just anything and best of all, she doesn't have those nervous, bilious and dizzy spells any more. Her nerves are perfectly quiet now, and her improvement is wonderful. We want to say a good word for Argotane, because it has helped her so much. My wife is enjoying better health now than she has in years."

especially as to the opening of Margaret street.

Ed Burke stated that Washington street between South Main and Church was so dusty that residents could not sit on their porches and their furniture was being ruined. There was considerable discussion of what had already been done on this street by the city, and no action was taken other than to take the matter under advisement.

C. Roe Wilson appeared to ask about some driveways to property on East Houston that had been improperly located by the contractor and was assured that they would be properly placed as soon as the engineer could get at the contractor and have it done.

Paul Dorsey asked revision of the parking for fire lane on South Eighteenth between Bonham and Grand avenue and the matter was referred to the council, engineer and fire chief for recommendation on which to base an ordinance.

Campbell and Collier asked permission to operate an auto service to the fair ground and were told that no special permit was necessary if they did not interfere with the bus lines which have a franchise on certain streets.

The monthly accounts against the city were allowed and the council adjourned.

Success for Her

"I know now why people who use Herline praise it so much," says Mrs. J. G. Wade, who lives at 902 South Vernon in Dallas. "For more than two years I was in bed most of the time. I was so exhausted. My nerves were so 'shot to pieces' I couldn't rest, and food didn't interest me a bit. Our druggist told us to use Herline to get me straightened out and here I am as well as ever. I have even gained the forty pounds I lost."

Herline is a vegetable liquid which does nothing more than help your stomach and bowels take care of the food you eat. It keeps them active so your blood gets plenty of vitamins to build red corpuscles.

Home Agent

MISS LIDA COOPER

Miss Lida Cooper, home demonstration agent, has no doubt done more to stimulate interest in women's exhibits at the Lamar District fair than any other person. Miss Cooper always puts in the greater part of her time just preceding the fair in visiting home demonstration clubs throughout the county, helping them select exhibits, and encouraging the members to make displays. Just before the fair, she brings in the various articles for exhibit, and keeps them in her office until the fair begins. She also gives assistance in arranging the club girls' exhibits, as well as the community exhibits from the various communities.

hours a navy plane had hopped off for Philadelphia for a load of antitetanus serum and anti-toxins, and two others had been ordered to depart for the naval station at Norfolk, Virginia, at dawn Tuesday where they will take on a cargo of bandages and medical supplies.

Present plans were for the planes to meet at Norfolk Tuesday, interchange cargoes and take off immediately on the first leg of their journey to Santo Domingo. Each plane will carry a load of 2000 pounds of surgical dressings, antitoxins and anesthetics. They will fly to Santo Domingo via Atlanta, Ga., Miami, Fla., Camaguey, Cuba, and Port au Prince, Haiti.

was selected temporary chairman and keynote for the convention Tuesday. E. C. Toothman, secretary of the state republican organization, was chosen temporary secretary of the convention, and Frank Blankenbiller of Cleco was named temporary sergeant-at-arms.

After an open session of the committee, an executive session was held at which Croager presented a platform he had drawn up. Croager refused to say what it contained, on the theory that it might be blue-pencilled, but the gist of it was learned from other sources.

It will be short, consisting of about 1,200 words minus the preamble. It was said it would recommend a tariff on oil with the notation that such a tariff was opposed in Congress by certain democratic senators.

Other planks in the platform, besides the tariff on oil, were said to include: commendation of prohibition enforcement under the present national administration, censure of expenditures by state departments under the present administration, amalgamation of county offices in the interest of economy, passage of an equity of redemption law with one and two year clauses, complete revision of election laws, condemnation of the administration of the state prison system, and passage of a law making the state highway commission a board of five members, four to be elective and one to be appointed by the governor.

Carpenter seconded by John D. Middleton and unanimous vote of said directors, he it resolved: That all these economic features are considered and endorsed by said directors for Red river from its mouth to its most western reaches. That all the above features may be considered where applicable, that we tender our undivided influence and support toward the successful completion of said reservoir project, as indicated by the army engineer's recent survey. ing problems of government, was to deal with penitentiary reformations without advocating definite relocation in Central Texas; some kind of system equalizing taxes and a form of control of public utilities.

The executive committee canvassed the returns of the runoff primary and declared the nomination of that contest to be Mr. Sterling for governor, Edgar Wirt of Waco for lieutenant governor, James V. Allred of Wichita Falls for attorney general, Charley Lockhart of Austin for treasurer, J. E. McDonald of Waxahatchie for commissioner of agriculture, and Pat M. Neff of Waco for railroad

Secretary Johnson reported from all the counties, maintaining the record established for the first time in history when all counties reported in the first primary. His tabulation showed that Sterling received 473,362 votes to 384,402 for Mrs. Ferguson, a majority of $8,959 for the highway commission chairman.

As the duly elected delegates began arriving here Monday it became more and more evident there would be no inclination to block the plans of Mr. Sterling and his friends to write a platform of principles and policies.

Former Governor James E. Ferguson, husband of Governor Miriam A. Ferguson, who was defeated for the nomination by Mr. Sterling with a margin of 88,960 votes in the runoff primary, said word he would not attend the convention.

Partisans of Clint C. Small of Wellington, Thomas B. Love and Barry Miller of Dallas, Earle B. Mayfield of Austin and Jim Young of Kaufman, runner up candidates for governor in the first primary, rallied around the Sterling flag after he went into the runoff with Mrs. Ferguson, were here to help the Houstonian get off to an unbiased democratic start.

Mr. Sterling, who arrived in Galveston Monday while the state executive committee was canvassing the returns of the second primary and declaring him the nominee, predicted the convention would be one of "the quietest in years."

"Tomorrow's state democratic convention, while prospectively one of the quietest in years, and therefore one of the most harmonious, will mark the beginning of a new day in progress in Texas, it is my hope and belief."

"The people wish peace and the advancement of the state's interests, which can come only with peace. The amity which their chosen representatives to the convention have manifested on the eve of the meeting clearly demonstrates that the citizenship of Texas is ready to unite and in harmony work for the development and prosperity of Texas. To that end I shall gladly give my utmost efforts in days to come, inviting the co-operation of all men and women to seek good government."

"I rejoice in the good feeling with which Texas Democracy is gathering here, and in its promise of state progress. I am happy that the convention which is to pronounce officially my nomination is to be held in Galveston, the first city I ever knew, which I all but considered home in my youth; where one of the first serious impulses was given to my candidacy and where I made my closing campaign speech."

Likewise, Governor Dan Moody who, if the Democratic party is triumphant in November as is usually the case, will surrender the reins of government to Mr. Sterling, whom he appointed chairman of the state highway commission four years ago, expressed confidence that the administration of his successor would be along lines of business so badly needed.

With virtually all delegations on hand Monday night there was a strong likelihood that Mr. Sterling and his partisans would have the exclusive say as to what should go in the Democratic platform. There was little chance of a discordant note entering into the proceedings.

Senator Walter C. Woodward of Coleman, supporter of Senator Small in the first primary, who went along with Mr. Sterling on the stump in the runoff against Mrs. Ferguson, was recommended by the state Democratic execu-

Too Much ACID

Many people, two hours after eating, suffer indigestion as they call it. It is usually excess acid. Correct it with an alkali. The best way, the quick, harmless and efficient way, is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. It has remained for 50 years the standard with physicians. One spoonful in water neutralizes many times its volume in stomach acids, and at once. The symptoms disappear in five minutes.

His selection was made by acclamation on motion of General Jacob F. Wolters of Houston. Mrs. J. W. Fincher of Houston, assistant campaign manager for Mr. Sterling and in charge of women's activities was named convention secretary, and T. J. Anderson of Galveston, sergeant at arms.

J. O. Huggins of Houston, editor of the Houston Chronicle, a contemporary of Mr. Sterling's Post-Dispatch, was slated to be chairman of the new State Democratic executive committee, succeeding D. W. Wilcox of Georgetown, who held that position during the troublous days of the 1928 presidential campaign and who steered the party through several storms.

Murphy Townsend of Dallas, North Texas manager of the Sterling campaign, was to be permanent chairman of the convention if he cares to accept the honor.

RAILROADS PLAN FOR DROUGHT RELIEF REPORTED PROGRESSING SMOOTHLY

By R. H. Ashton

President American Railway Association and Member of the Drought Relief Committee

THE railroads' plan for drought relief through freight reductions on livestock, feed and water to and from the stricken areas of the country, is progressing "smoothly and successfully" with 100 per cent co-operation between the carriers and the federal government.

As evidence of the carriers' efforts to aid in the relief of farmers in the drought stricken sections of the country, in the east shipments of hay, feed and water are already moving in increasing volume into the drought area under the reduced rates.

Under the rate reduction plan, the country is divided roughly into three sections—the west, south and east. Western territory lies west of the Mississippi, or a line between St. Louis and Chicago and Lake Michigan. Eastern territory is that section north of the Ohio and Potomac rivers and east of the Mississippi and the St. Louis-Chicago line, and southern territory that section east of the Mississippi and south of the Ohio and Potomac rivers.

Effective August 14, the eastern railroads reduced the freight rates 50 per cent on livestock from drought stricken sections, fixed by the secretary of agriculture, to grazing lands, and upon hay, feed and water into the drought area. The southern carriers followed shortly thereafter with a 50 per cent reduction on livestock, hay and feed, but omitted water, since there is no dearth of water in the south necessitating water shipments. The southern rate reductions became effective on August 18.

The western railroads then filed tariffs with the Interstate Commerce commission providing for a freight rate reduction of 33 1/3 per cent on livestock, hay and feed. Water had already been provided for prior to the adoption of the drought relief plan.

Shortly after President Hoover called upon the railroads of the country to co-operate with the federal government to the fullest possible extent in reducing the rates applicable on shipments of livestock from and hay and feed into the drought areas of the country, the commission made public a special order relieving the railroads of the necessity of asking for authority to file the emergency tariffs prior to their becoming effective.

WHAT OTHERS SAY

LONG FROCKS

From the Texarkana Gazette:

It has long been pretty generally known that changes in style of women's dress are dictated by the trade interests instead of by the persons most concerned personally and that not even the fashionable women of the French capital have any say in the matter. But some less generally known particulars are brought to light by an article in the Paris journal, L'Illustration, entitled "La Revanche de la Robe Longue" (the revenge or triumphant return of the long dress). According to Robert de Beauplan, its author, the chief aim in the style change was to save the dressmaking industry in France. The long skirt by itself is somewhat of a smoke screen; the real aim was to bring back the "robe travaille," a garment which by its complicated cut, gorings and fittings, demands expensive labor as well as the art of specialists. This great French industry has suffered for several years because dresses had become so simple that any saving housewife or flapper able to thread a needle could copy the styles of the most high-priced shops.

So the powerful dressmaking industry of France was enabled to change the style in its own interests in spite of the determined opposition of great numbers of women in every country of the world. According to this French writer, women would have clung more tenaciously to the short skirt if there had been merely resistance to its vogue. "If it had aroused shocked protest and moral condemnation, women would have stuck to it with diabolical persistence. But there was no fun in clinging desperately to an uncontested victory."

FARMER AND HIS FORTUNE

From the Mineral Wells Index.

EDWARD Disney Farmer came to Texas in the early 70's from the British Isles and picked Texas as the Garden of the Lord. He was a keen business man. He never played. He kept his eye on the main chance. He never married. He insisted that he traveled fastest who traveled alone, and when he died last year at the age of 72 he left a fortune in ranch lands and Fort Worth realty having a value of $2,000,000.

He made a will before he passed on. He bequeathed $1,500,000 to be distributed among Episcopal churches and charities in Fort Worth and in Parker county and part going to the University of the South. He amassed his large fortune in Texas. Now that fortune will be placed where it will do most good for charity, for religion and for education. Texas is the Garden of the Lord and there are more opportunities for individual advancement in fortune to be found in Texas today than there were when Edward Disney Farmer pitched his tent in the long ago in the wilderness of Parker county.

OH HEAR THE DISTANT THUNDER'S HUM

Guiding Your Child

TEACHER'S JOB.

By Mrs. Agnes Lynne.

A little discussion of the teacher's job perhaps will help the mother of the school-going family to appreciate the magnitude of the task that confronts every teacher. Her room is filled with children whose homes represent social extremes, and whose standards and experience therefore are widely different from one another.

In the same room sit bright children and dull ones, those particularly fitted by temperament and mental endowment to handle school subjects well and others also gifted, but in ways that find no outlet within the limits of the curriculum.

To the classroom the children bring their various temperaments and all the individual peculiarities which are the outcome of their emotional adjustments within the family circle.

With this so heterogeneous group, the teacher somehow must accomplish happily and efficiently the tasks fixed by the course of study.

The good teacher is not content to teach her pupils this and that, and let them so their way. She cannot help but become interested in their personal problems as they crop out in relation to school authorities, lessons, and classmates.

Often there is much that she could do to help a child if only she had the time and energy to enlist the intelligent help of his family.

Added to the individual problems of which her class is composed, there is the fact that every group and her methods of handling them must adapt themselves accordingly.

Teaching is no cut and dried job, nor is it an easy, unimagined one. A really good teacher deserves all the respect and cooperation that it is in your power to give her.

A NEW YORKER AT LARGE

By Mark Barron.

NEW YORK (AP)—If, visiting the race track at Aqueduct, Saratoga, Bayview de Grace or Epsom Downs, you happen to see a native fellow in a rather bizarre costume, the chances are you are gazing at one of the best known and most picturesque men of the sporting world.

His name is E. Phocian Howard, his sobriquet "the journalistic dude" and his passion horse races of any kind.

He began life among the political writers in Washington, but so great grew his interest in the ponies that today he publishes an authoritative racing weekly.

But it is for his clothes that Howard chiefly is famous.

His shirts, expensively made to order, are of mixed hues that reduce the whole chromatic scale to somberness.

The studs and cuff links are set with rubies or emeralds or diamonds—anything that gives the proper flash.

He remains blandly indifferent to changing styles, since he is himself the designer of his apparel. Not for him the wide trousers of the day. Tightish garments his tailor is ordered, protesting, to fashion.

His hats and overcoats, also his own creations, are quite in keeping with the rest of his costumery, hence it is easy to imagine that Howard, fully clad, presents a striking figure.

Known Over World.

He is known to trackmen the world over. His itinerary is that of the horses—and much more. Saratoga, New York, Maryland, Chicago, Lexington, Florida, Mexico, California, Canada, England and France—these are his annual stops, always when the horses are there.

His manner of travel is somewhat odd, too.

No matter what his destination, he orders his valet to prepare his extensive wardrobe, engage a drawing room for him and then follow in the expensive limousine that has by this time become a readily recognized prop at all important tracks.

The sustaining item of Howard's creed is, incidentally, "All horseplayers must die broke."

Strikes in "Dicks."

How rapidly the stage and movie exhaust a type.

Just now directors in both mediums are searching for a character who can give authenticity to a detective role without betraying his calling to the villain or the audience.

Some years ago the detective was a surly fellow in "flat" shoes and a hard hat, who removed his cigar only at such times as he was required to belch, and his hat never.

When Tommy Jackson, who has two brothers on the New York detective force, appeared in "Broadway" as a man who might reasonably be accepted as somebody who had come from headquarters, he established a new type.

Since that time all stage detectives have been more or less dapper, soft-spoken fellows, growing tough whenever the dramatic situation requires them to. (The movies are progressing in that direction now, though the hard hat is still an invariable prop.)

Diet and Health

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D., Author of "THE HUMAN BODY"

Appropos of the troubles people get into from changing the regular time schedule of their meals, I mentioned Sunday that many tourists get upset simply because the hours at which they usually have their meals are upset over there.

I did not intend any criticism of the French breakfast. I do not say it is any better than ours. I certainly do not mean to pay it any worse. It is simply different.

And French people who come to America get quite as much upset if they try to follow the hours and ingredients of American meals as we do in France.

The subject is one which points an important lesson in many kinds of dietary treatment. Do not change your diet suddenly and violently. This is true not only of healthy people but of people who badly need a change of dietary. For instance, diabetics.

In the old days, before we had insulin to help us with diabetes, we had to depend entirely on the treatment of the condition on rearranging the patient's diet. And one of the best rules everybody who had much experience found out was: "Don't change a diabetic's diet too quickly."

We have all seen some of the most serious complications of diabetes—severe coma—brought on by a careless disregard of this rule. What we learned to do was to change the diet very gradually, day by day cutting down the intake of sugar.

Sometimes, it was two weeks or more before the final dietary adjustment was completed. Even with insulin at hand the danger is not entirely ended. We should still make the dietary adjustments necessary in diabetes slowly.

Especially with old people is it necessary to remember this rule. Old people should never have a sudden rearrangement of their diet, either by change in its ingredients or change in its schedule. They bear it very badly indeed.

Children of all people, stand sudden food changes the best. But even with them it is not a wise procedure. Much of the illness consequent to young people's picnics is due to this factor rather than to the sort of food they eat on those strenuous occasions.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Clendenning cannot diagnose or give personal answers to letters from readers. Where questions are of general interest, however, they will be taken up in order, in the daily column. Address your questions to Dr. Logan Clendenning, care of this paper. Write legibly and not over 200 words.)

When I came to Paris in 1879, two years after the first "big fire" the business section was little more than those houses that faced the public square. A couple of blocks on Clarksville and Bonham streets and a block on North and South Main would include practically all the stores and offices. Neither of the blocks cornering the square on the north side were built and at the southwest corner there was only the Odd Fellows hall. The southeast corner escaped in that fire, as did the north side of the square.

The growth was gradual and it was several years before residences gave way to business buildings. In adjacent blocks. On Clarksville street where now is a filling station and the Ford Motor agency were the homes of Dr. A. A. Walker and T. H. Freese, and on east was nothing but residences. There was a row of frame business buildings on the north side of Clarksville between Twenty-first and Twenty-second, and on east was the Richey wagon yard with a residence on the corner where now is the bakery.

On Lamar avenue there was a cotton platform where now is the Grand theater, and the east side of the block facing the east side of the square was mostly vacant. As late as 1884-5 I lived with my mother's family in a cottage owned by C. F. Richey which stood exactly where now is the Morning News press room, and across the street where is now the east half of the Scott block was another residence. The entire block now covered by the postoffice and junior college was occupied by the Cumberland church and several residences.

Down Bonham street the buildings after leaving the square were frame and very diverse construction—none on the north side of the first block and three and a wagon yard in the second block. Where is now the Ashenden and Wood buildings was the home of Mayor Ed Gibbons.

On South Twentieth there was a residence where is now the DuLaney building and on the east side where is the City Hotel. Major company was Mrs. Gunnell's millinery store with her living rooms in the rear and upstairs. South Main street residences began where is now the Outdoor Advertising company's billboard, there being a little frame store on the corner north of it.

The business district began to grow with the advent of the north and south railroads about 1835, and since that time has spread not rapidly but pretty regularly, until it is several times as big as it was fifty years ago.

Back at the war department in Richmond, even with this additional data, there still seemed to be difficulty found in crediting the story. Banks' promotion to major was approved, however, subject to a personal recommendation from "Marse Robert" himself.

That General Lee promptly forwarded the gallant South Carolinian went up a step in rank and has his name spread on that brief and amazing roll of the bravest of the boys in gray which Uncle Sam now keeps in his files.

Why not? If there is anything more striking in all the long story of valor in action American soldiers have written in all wars, the Bystander has not heard of it. In numbers involved, at least, it outranks the World war exploit of Sergeant York.

And if Sen. Cole Blaise of South Carolina, who still rumbles with Civil war echoes now and then, ever gets his eye on that yellow old official story of Banks' valor, or on the similar record of Sergeant H. S. O'Brien of the 7th South Carolina cavalry, no doubt they'll go into the Congressional Record. They are worth reading.

Still Doubtful.

When this original recommendation went to Richmond for war department approval, it bore the endorsement of General Lee himself, and of General Longstreet. It evidently caused doubt in Richmond, however, for it went back for more information. Then Brigadier General John Bratton gave this account:

"In action on the 27th of October on the Williamsburg road, Captain Banks advanced several hundred paces in front of our line and captured 300 prisoners. His arms were full of swords and several stands of colors. Others went to his assistance and succeeded in capturing 600 prisoners in all."

"This was done in view of three brigades of the division."

Lee Approved.

Back at the war department in Richmond, even with this additional data, there still seemed to be difficulty found in crediting the story. Banks' promotion to major was approved, however, subject to a personal recommendation from "Marse Robert" himself.

That General Lee promptly forwarded the gallant South Carolinian went up a step in rank and has his name spread on that brief and amazing roll of the bravest of the boys in gray which Uncle Sam now keeps in his files.

Revolution's Flare In Argentina Shows Don Hipolito, Resigned As Timid But Stubborn President

By Charles P. Stewart
Central Press Staff Writer
WASHINGTON, Sept. 8.—President Hipolito Irigoyen, resigned, and his revolutionary worries in the Argentine republic are worth understanding in this country, because Argentina has a potent voice in Pan-American affairs.

The Argentine, being destined never to engage extensively in manufacturing, due to a lack of adequate fuel supplies, is a natural market for North American industries. However, her own products are almost exclusively agricultural and pastoral, so that what she has to offer in exchange is practically what our farmers produce also—which explains her resentment at our tariffs, shutting out her commodities at the same time that we are offering ours to her, and she wants them.

Don Hipolito's dislike of the United States (there is no doubt about it) unquestionably is based partly on this ground, but there is an additional reason for it, dating back to President Wilson's administration.

Break During War.
Don Hipolito was president of Argentina when the United States entered the world war—there was a break between his then regime and his present one.

He was an extremely genuine neutral, and quite satisfactorily so to President Wilson until the latter decided on North American participation in the conflict, when he wanted, in the interests of Pan-American solidarity, at least some gesture of approval of his policy from the Buenos Aires government. Don Hipolito refused it, and was repeatedly grossly affronted by Washington's attitude toward him, in an effort to break down his determination. American's absorbed in the war, of course, never knew it, but Argentine, including Don Hipolito, did.

The incidents of that period have had much to do, ever since, with Argentina's coldness toward the United States. Don Hipolito, in particular, is not of a forgiving disposition.

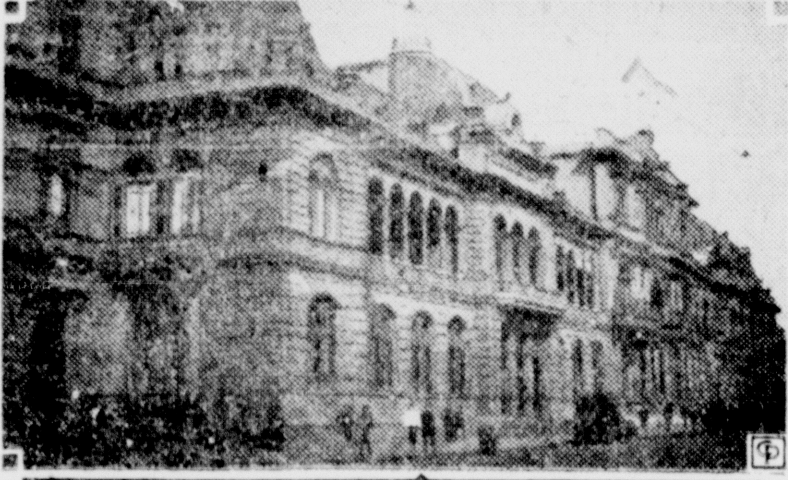

A Nationalist.
It is to be borne in mind, too, that Don Hipolito is a very thorough nationalist, favoring Argentina's interests against everyone's interests.

This makes him unpopular with North Americans.

A South American president is one of two things:
He is disliked by his own people, as showing a preference for foreigners, or he is disliked by foreigners (and sometimes is actually caused serious trouble by them), for not giving them what they want.

Pres. HIPOLITO IRIGOYEN

GOVERNMENT PALACE at BUENOS AIRES—the official residence of the President.

Don Hipolito certainly is disliked by foreigners.

However, he also has formidable enemies among his own people.

Two big classes of Argentines are continually striving to control the Buenos Aires government—

The class of large landowners and the banking class.

In recent years the banking class generally has controlled, but Don Hipolito represents the landowning class. Consequently he has the bankers against him.

Land Is High.

The landowners are not angels. Comparatively very few families hold title to all of Argentina's best land. They lack the capital to develop it to its best advantage and will not accept it on terms that capitalists will consider—explaining in great part the friction between them and the bankers. But they will not sell and they will not even rent at prices which leave tenants a margin for more than the barest living. Vast areas of rich farming land are given over solely to cattle and sheep grazing.

It ought to be a magnificent field for settlement and would be settlers have, in fact, poured in—but no place is open for them to settle.

Consequently they have congested in the cities. Buenos Aires alone has a population of 2,000,000—in a country with a scant 3,000,000 inhabitants. And there are other large cities, representing another 1,500,000. Naturally the situation is tremendously top-heavy, especially with no manufacturing to speak of. Wages are impossibly low and the urban centers 90 per cent miserable and turbulent.

Despite the fact that Don Hipolito represents the class which is mainly responsible for these conditions, he sympathizes with the actual sufferers—though, seemingly unable to comprehend their real difficulty.

Due to his sympathies (apparently without understanding), he is a political ultra-radical.

In 1912 he permitted labor troubles to gain such headway that the organization of a soviet government was effected, and street fighting raged for three days, with the loss of approximately 1,000 lives, before order finally was restored.

President Irigoyen is a curious combination of stubbornness and personal timidity.

That he became alarmed at the least hint of popular discontent is characteristic of him. He filled the capital with troops at the first suggestion of trouble, during his earlier term, and yet, when actual danger developed, he balked at using them.

Loos Furnishes Fair Features With His Shows

J. George Loos and his mighty midway once again are furnishing the amusements for the Lamar County Fair.

The Loos shows need but little introduction and the name stands for high class and clean amusement.

The slogan "bigger and better" is most aptly applied to the shows this year. There are eight of the latest riding devices which include the Hey Day, a ride that has a combination of thrills and has never before been seen in Paris. There are 15 feature shows. The Dixeyland Minstrels, this year comprise a company direct from the Black Belt of New York and most of the company have appeared in the New York reviews which have made such a hit on Broadway. Milo Anthony's Coney Island side show is a sure fire hit. Never before has such a large collection of freaks and acts ever been shown under one top save with the exception of a couple carried by the larger circuses. Fun on the farm, the strange couple, freak animal and 14 other shows makes a wonderful midway and everyone who visits the fair should by all means take in the Loos shows.

Hickory Grove, S. C.—"I have recommended Cardui to a great many of my friends because my health improved so much after I took it," says Mrs. John Dover of this place.

"For a long time I was in bad health. I was weak and run-down. I suffered frequently from nervous headaches, and I could not sleep. I was thin and pale. I was so weak I could scarcely walk. It was an effort for me to do my housework, and I could not often venture out."

"I began to take Cardui on the recommendation of a friend. I heard about it and found that it had helped others who had suffered as I did."

"It wasn't very long until I saw that I was beginning to pick up. My strength gradually began to return. I rested better at night and was less nervous. I took several bottles of Cardui, and when I quit taking it I was in fine health, so I do not hesitate to tell others about this medicine."

As fine gold refined— THE NEW PACKARD EIGHT

WE MOST cordially invite you to come in and look over the new Packard cars now on display at our showrooms.

You will find them as fine gold refined—as one of the world's finest cars made still finer.

A Wide Choice of Beautiful New Models

The new Packard Eight includes more notable improvements and refinements than any Packard of recent years. It is available in thirty-two beautiful models ranging in price from $2385 for the ever-popular Standard Eight Five-Passenger Sedan to $6075 for the finest Individual Custom creation. (At the factory.)

Improved carburetion and manifolding have increased the power. With added power, performance, especially in traffic and at the "red light", has been bettered. The advantages which only a four-speed transmission can give have been retained, with the transmission converted to the "short-shift" type. Longer and softer springs and new shock absorbers provide more riding comfort. An entirely automatic lubrication system now takes the human element out of daily chassis care and protects the long life resulting from fine engineering and precision manufacture.

Bodies made in Packard's own factories are the finest in every way that Packard has ever offered. Traditional appearance has been retained and beauty of line refined. Interiors have been beautified and made more luxurious. New color combinations have been provided.

Thirty years of building for the most discriminating clientele has taught the Packard Motor Car Company what such a clientele demands. And year by year—and again this year—new luxuries, new refinements and new improvements have been added.

An Investment in Luxurious Transportation

Today when nearly everyone is thinking in terms of investment instead of speculation, and buying more carefully, we ask you to view refined and improved cars—cars without a single speculative or untried feature. With Packard the car has always been greater than any one feature. You could not buy, expecting to keep your car four or five years if it were otherwise.

We shall be delighted to have you visit our showrooms and, as our guest, you will not be urged to buy. You will be extended every courtesy and desired attention in return for your own kindness in calling.

National League Race Draws Tighter When Robins Take 2 Games

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 8. (P)—The National league pennant race was drawn a little tighter Monday as the Brooklyn Robins won a double-header from the Phillies, moving into third place, only three and one-half games back of the pace setting Chicago Cubs. The Brooklyn-Philadelphia games were the only contests scheduled in either of the major leagues.

Two big innings in each game and a brilliant hurling exhibition by the Robins in the opener gave the Cubs the first encounter 11 to 2 and the nightcap 11 to 4. Moss was the whole show for the Robins in the first fust. The second contest was a close battle until the seventh frame, when the Dodgers smashed six runs across the plate, driving Willoughby from the mound.

Cyril J. H. Tolley, former champion, heads the British delegation which includes also Thomas A. Bourn, former French and English native champion; John DeForest, Brig. Gen. A. C. Critchley, Capt. R. A. Stroyan, and Edward R. Tippet, all known in English amateur competition.

Francis Brown, Honolulu, is the lone representative of the Hawaiian islands.

Bobby Jones, trying to make a grand slam in clubs, will tee off at 9:15 Monday, leading the way for the outstanding stars. His playing companion will be Emory Stratton, Boston.

CHAPTER 11.

Much was to happen in the two weeks that were away. In the morning Kitty received a letter from John Spurgeon, enclosing a check for eight hundred dollars, the settlement of her father's small estate.

"I wanted to bring this to you, but I cannot afford it," he wrote. "Mother must go to Rochester for an expensive operation. I must find three thousand dollars; I don't know where, but it won't be by taking a trip to New York to see you."

When she deposited the check, Kitty asked her balance. "With this it is nine hundred and thirty dollars," she was told. Kitty nodded. The fund with which she had begun had been stolen, but she had saved a little from her very good salary. Impulsively she wrote her check for nine hundred dollars and sent it to John.

"You won't want to take it, but you must," she wrote. "You can pay it back when you are ready. I have a good job and don't need the money. I will send you a hundred dollars a month as long as you need it. I can well afford it and I love your mother. You must take it for her, John, dear." She was glad John didn't know it was all she had!

Kitty was very happy over this. It always pleased her to do something for a friend, and she felt much better that she could repay the lawyer for his kindness at the time of her father's death. But she had little time that day to think of her act. Mr. Goss kept her very busy, and was unusually sardonic and difficult.

During the day she had two invitations: one was from Allee for dinner and a visit to a night club; the other from Hilda, who asked her to a party on the following Saturday. "Don't tell any one, will you? It's not our office crowd!"

The blond "phone girl" was very mysterious. "You'll meet Spike," Kitty did not care much about going to Hilda's; Sally's warning was not the reason, but she preferred Saturday evening at the Avers. But she was too generous to spoil the pleasure of the hard-boiled and slangy receptionist, who seemed to regard it as very important that Kitty meet her Spike, the policeman about whom she had heard so much.

Allee called for her early, at six, and drove her first to a quiet house in the seventies.

"Where are we going?" asked Kitty, as he paid off the taxi. "Little girls mustn't ask questions!" he smiled. "Won't you trust me?"

Kitty said no more. Of course she would trust Allee!

The quiet house proved to be one of those unobtrusive foreign restaurants, inhabiting a made-over private house, in which New York abounds. Kitty was ushered into an upstairs private dining room; a beautifully decorated table drew an exclamation of pleasure from her.

For the first time in her life Kitty tasted Chateau Yquem with her fish, and Mumm's with her dinner.

In Allee Kitty discovered a new man at a dinner table. Thus far, while his eyes had been warm, and the swift kiss which had served as such a sudden introduction that first evening in the taxi had been hot, he had been rather diffident with her; now he was bold, gay, carefree, ardent.

Allee talked interestingly and coarsely; she liked what he said, but more the way he said it. Kitty hardly believed he was serious, his expression and his tones both made of her nothing less than a queen.

From dinner he took her to the night club, and Kitty saw for the first time New York's night life.

The taxi stopped before a tall apartment house in upper Park Avenue. Through dizzy eyes Kitty noted a quiet rich lobby, a uniformed hall porter and elevator boy, a swift and noiseless ascent to the eighth floor.

"Where are we?" whispered Kitty.

"Friends of mine. Mr. and Mrs. Killiker. Be here presently; come in."

A grave faced butler opened a heavy door and ushered Kitty into such an apartment as she had never dreamed existed. It seemed to have endless vistas and halls and rooms. The heaviest of oriental and Chinese rugs covered the floors. Furniture which even to Kitty's unpracticed eye spelled antiquity and priceless was to be seen in profusion. Kitty had a confused impression of much gold; gold ceiling, gold colored curtains, gold chairs. A huge gold and brown divan stood back of a black and gold fireplace, in which a golden blaze crackled merrily. A black and white dressed maid took her wrap; the butler brought in a tray with glasses.

"Mr. and Mrs. Killiker say when they'd be here, Henderson? If they call, put them through here. That will be all, thank you."

"Where's the 'phone?" asked Kitty. Allee pointed to a gold and green inlaid cabinet.

"What a wonderful place!" cried Kitty, sitting on a couch. "Who are these people, Allee? They must have oodles of money! I've never heard you speak of them to Sally."

"No. And don't you. No need to tell all you know. But I wanted them to meet you—you darling!"

Kitty smiled at him. He was very handsome. The room was hushed and beautiful. Kitty had never felt such a warm glow of happiness! How good he was to her—this evening must have cost him a lot of money!

"Allee! I'm all conscience struck! You can't afford to spend money on me like a—like a—"

"Like a drunken sailor?" suggested Allee. "Why can't I?"

"Because—well, Mr. Goss pays good salaries, but you've shot a week's pay on this evening, at least!" protested Kitty.

Allee smiled. "I'm not wholly dependent on my pay!" he answered. "Don't worry, girle!"

"But I can't repay you—I have no home to invite you to—"

"Feel the debt heavy on your heart?" he asked, sitting closer. "If you do—"

"Oh, I do!"

He slipped an arm around her. "I stole one once!" he whispered. "Now give me one—"

Kitty stirred restlessly in his arms; she started to protest. But the lights were very bright, the surroundings beautiful. Allee was—sweet.

She turned toward him, the dimple much in evidence.

Allee crushed her to him. He rained kisses on her cheeks, her dimple; his lips clung to her lips. For a moment the world went around.

"Don't—don't!" she cried. "Don't! But I will!" he answered. "I've got you now! You are mine, you darling, mine, do you hear? I'll never let you go—never, never—"

Kitty stared up into his eyes; eyes no longer clear and cool, the eyes of gentlemen. Now they were predatory, burning. Something in them seared a message that frightened her. She sprang up, hastily, terror in her heart.

Allee, too, sprang to his feet. His arms were stretched out to take her when the curtains parted and the butler came in.

"You are wanted on the 'phone, sir!" he said respectfully.

The butler disappeared. Allee picked up the 'phone and turned his back. As if all the devils in hell were after her, Kitty fled from the room, crashed open and shut the heavy door and fled down the stairs marked "exit" without her wrap, thoroughly frightened for the second time in her life.

MARKETS

Paris Cotton and Seed.

Cotton receipts in Paris Monday, place one, 175 bales; place two, 187 bales. Prices 10.25 to 11.25 cents. Total receipts for season 3,269 bales.

Cottonseed $28 per ton f. o. b., in carload lots; $25 per ton in less than carload lots.

Local Produce Market.

Monday, September 8.

Heavy hens, 4 lbs and over 12c. Leghorns and light, 10c. Springs, 10c. Cocks, five pounds and over, 6c. Cocks, under five pounds, 4c lb. Eggs, candled, 17c doz. Butterfat, 57c lb.

New York Cotton.

NEW YORK, Sept. 8. (AP)—The government crop report placing the indicated yield as of September 1 at 14,340,000 bales was followed by a decline of about $2.60 to $2.85 per bale in the cotton market here Monday. These figures were about 300,000 bales above the average of recent private indications and the market which had been rather nervous and irregular preceding their publication broke under more or less general southern, local and Wall Street selling.

New December contracts sold down to 10.30 or within a point of the low record established on the decline of last month, but the break was checked by trade buying and covering at this figure, and that delivery closed at 11.05 or 13 points up from the lowest. The general market closed steady at net declines of 33 to 45 points. Prices rallied after the usual 20 minutes to receive the government crop report at midday. Selling was active, and appeared to be coming from practically all directions. It included southern selling, but this was said to be generally in small lots and the bulk of the pressure was attributed to liquidation of long accounts, that had been carried over and pressure from local and foreign selling.

The report of the census bureau showing a gain of 1,878,253 bales prior to September 1, was slightly above expectations, but came in for some little comment in connection with the selling. Trade interests were reported good buyers on scale down, while covering became more active as prices approached the previous low records for the season. Exports Monday were 48,359 bales, making 521,476 so far this season. Port receipts, 55,711. U. S. port stocks 1,938,727.

New Orleans Cotton.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 8. (AP)—The government crop report showing an indicated yield of 14,340,000 bales of 500 pounds weight and total gainings prior to September 1 of 1,878,253 running bales Monday dominated the cotton market. Both totals were larger than expected and the effect on the market was a sharp decline. Prior to receipt of the report the market had advanced 3 to 10 points on shorts covering and the immediate effect of the government showing was a drop of 37 to 42 points. This decline compared with the early highs of 64 to 68 points.

The market continued active during the period after midsession fluctuating within the previous range and near the end prices rallied on satisfied shorts covering, recovering 11 to 14 points from the lowest and closing steady at net declines for the day of 25 to 44 points.

Liverpool came in 1 to 2 points better than due but prices here opened 3 to 5 points down on a little further pre-bureau liquidation. Prices soon rallied on belated shorts covering and before the government report was issued October traded up to 11.25, and December to 11.25, 9 to 10 points above the previous close.

Chicago Grain.

CHICAGO, Sept. 8. (AP)—Unloading of wheat by owners collecting profits and persistent hedging pressure proved more than the Chicago wheat market could stand Monday and prices eased down. Scattered selling by tired owners and by commission houses placed more wheat on sale than there was buying power to absorb it. Trade was not large and the market was nervous and easily influenced. Chicago wheat was firm at the start, but the influence proved only transient. Corn ranged downward along with wheat. An overbought condition showed in the trade when owners started to unload on weak spots. A sensational bullish estimate of the 1930 corn crop by an official crop expert resulted in only sporadic buying and had little market influence.

Wheat closed nervous and unsettled, 1-1/8 1-1/2c net lower than Saturday's finish. Corn closed weak, 3-5 1-1/2c down, oats 1-2

Fort Worth Live Stock.

FORT WORTH, Sept. 8. (AP)—Sow trading with a lower tendency on cows and calves featured Monday's market.

Slaughter steers sold from $5.50 to $6. Bulls sold steady to strong with a load of Brahmas bulls at $4.65. The bulk of the light bulls sold from $3.75 down. Slaughter yearlings sold from $7.50 to $8. Common packages sold from $5.50 to $4.50.

Canner cow bids and a few sales were around 25c lower. Very thin ones sold down to $2 with canners around $2.25 to $2.60 and cutters around $2.75. Fat cows sold around $4.25 with a load on the heifer order at $5.25. Calves were about steady with a load of good heifer calves at $7.

Stocker steers sold at $5.60 and down. Young cows sold at $5.50 with some heifers at $5.25 and some yearlings from $5.50 to $7 truck boys 12 to 20c higher with a top of $10.35 and packing cows

Stock Market.

NEW YORK, Sept. 8. (AP)—The stock market strove valiantly Monday to extend last week's rally. Prices did move higher until the final hour, when realizing and some short selling, inspired by the weakness of the commodities and the absence of any constructive news, caused the earlier gains to dwindle or disappear. The close was irregular, although net changes in the leaders were small. Perhaps the most encouraging development, from the viewpoint of the bulls, was the increase in activity on the rise and the dullness of trading on the late decline. Sales for the day totalled 2,241,000 shares, the first time since August 27 that the 2,000,000 mark had been exceeded and the largest aggregate since August 12. Nevertheless, the public's participation remained negligible.

NEW GERM-PROCESSED OIL

... The Dollars and Cents Value of Penetrative Lubricity is Proved by Car Owners all Over the Country ... Day in and Day Out Users of Motor Oil Verify Every CONOCO Claim

From MONTANA

From Helena, Montana, comes the story of a mechanic who couldn't remove the Germ-Processed film from the cylinder walls of a motor belonging to Mr. Hirsch of that city. Neither gasoline nor naphtha could remove this metal-penetrating film, and now the mechanic recommends CONOCO motor oil to all his patrons.

From VIRGINIA

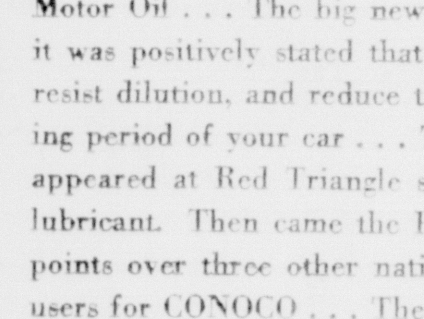

The speedometer said 3,681 miles when W. W. Winborne, Jr., of La Crosse, Va., had the crankcase of his car filled with CONOCO Germ-Processed Motor Oil. It said 5,136 miles before he drained it, and none was added. The motor was in perfect condition after running 1,475 miles on CONOCO Germ-Processed Motor Oil.

From MISSOURI

W. M. Hoppel, of Palmyra, Mo., double-disked and plowed 30 acres with his tractor in 95 hours running time. Tractors are usually drained daily, but Mr. Hoppel used just one fill of 8 quarts of CONOCO Germ-Processed Motor Oil, added only 4 quarts. The tractor ran without heating.

From WYOMING

Frontier, Wyo., coal miners ride 5 miles daily to their work. When the thermometer dropped to 20 below zero January 6, only two of twenty cars would start. Both were filled with CONOCO Germ-Processed Motor Oil. The other miners switched to CONOCO, experienced quick starting all winter with this oil.

From TEXAS

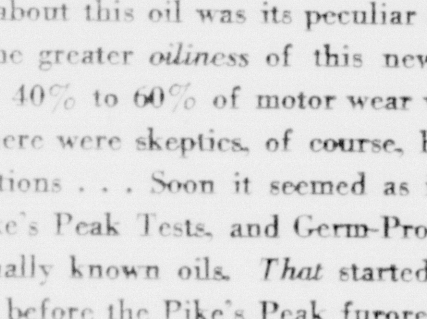

The oldest car in Denton County, Texas, belongs to Fred Kelsey, and J. D. Whiteside. On April 2nd, after several months use of Germ-Processed oil, these men removed the drain plug and drove their 1917 Chevrolet 614 miles without oil. Affidavits of the owners and witnesses affirm the fact that no damage was done to this motor. Now they're boosters!

From OKLAHOMA

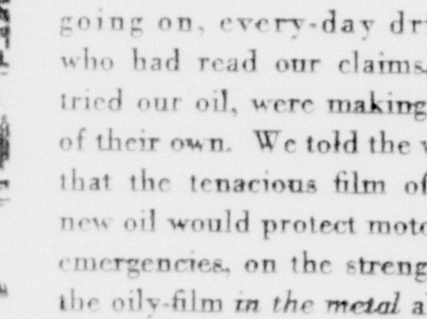

After he had run 1,000 miles on a fill of CONOCO Germ-Processed Motor Oil, Alexander Leitch, of Ponca City, Okla., had a sample of it tested by a chemist. He writes, "Viscosity... very high considering the service. Dilution... low... Sediment and cold tests favorable." Only 2 quarts were used by Mr. Leitch.

From NEW MEXICO

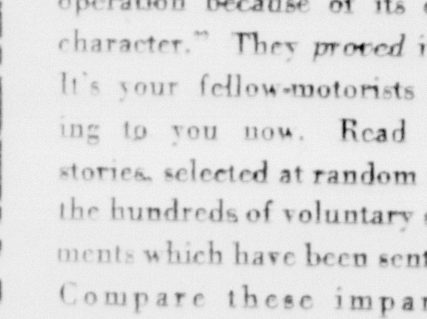

On his daily run of 100 miles between Mogollon and Silver City, N. M., Roy Henry's truck must climb 3,000 feet in 10 miles, mostly in low gear. "Used to change oil every 10 days," he writes, "CONOCO still in crankcase after 25 days... still in good shape. Easy starting... lasting qualities... best over."

From NEBRASKA

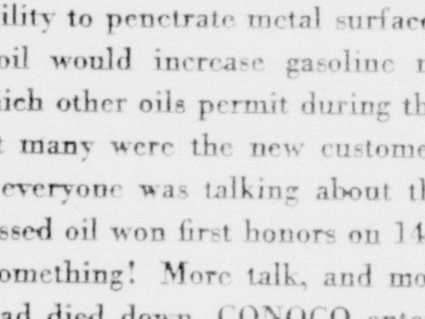

"Finest ever used," says C. W. Knott, of Lincoln, Neb. He filled his Ford with CONOCO Germ-Processed Motor Oil at 727 miles and did not drain until the speedometer showed 2,618 miles. One quart was added. Mr. Knott praises Germ-Processed oil after running 1,891 miles on one fill. Resists heat in long run.

From COLORADO

Clude Frazee, of Denver, Colo., filled his car with CONOCO Germ-Processed Motor Oil, added half a pint at 500 miles, did not drain until 1,238 miles. "The CONOCO oil was still in good condition," he says. "Used during coldest weather—13 below zero... does not congeal... starts easier... body to it after a long, hard drive."

From UTAH

Robert McFadden, of Provo, Utah, examined the CONOCO Germ-Processed Motor Oil in his Model A Ford after running 1,045 miles and found that it "looked and felt almost as good as new." He writes: "Germ-Processed Motor Oil is far ahead of any other oil I have ever used."
